FOREST CONDITIONS IN FLORIDA

Fire Problem a Serious Hindrance to Perpetuation of Forest.

A preliminary investigation of the forest conditions of Florida was made during the past winter by the United States Forest Service in co-operation with the State. The report is now completed and has been submitted to the Governor for his consideration. It is hoped that the Legislature may be able to incorporate at least some of the recommendations into law in the near future.

Florida occupies a prominent position among the timber and turpentine producing States of the country. It has, at present, a greater per cent of its land in forest than any other State. Some of the finest stands of longleaf pine in the South are contained within Second Florida District, has accepted its borders. The development of the the invitation of the Business Men's forest industries during the past few League of St. Louis and the Lake-toyears has been phenomenal. While the the-Gulf Deep Waterway Association agricultural development in certain to be a guest of these organizations parts of the State will make permanent during President Taft's visit to St. use of immense areas of cut-over land, Louis, and his journey down the Misthe bulk of lands now being cut over sissippi river to New Orleans, which will not be needed for agricultural pur- will include the week of October 25th poses for many years to come. In the to October 30th. meantime the timber producing possibilities of such lands are being destroyed by repeated fires, turpentining, and reckless lumbering. The opportunity to organize and adopt plans of forest management should not be delayed until the forest lands have all been cut over.

Many States have temporarily developed at the expense of their forest interests and have realized too late the disastrous effects of wasting their forest resources.

The report of the Forest Service examiner in Florida lays particular stress on the importance of a strong forest policy for the State. There should be an unexplained mystery. a Commission of Forestry to have general supervision of the forestry interests of the State and to appoint a State Forester. It should be the duty of the State Forester, under the direction of the Commission, to advise private owners in reference to forest management, to bring to public attention the damage done by forest fires, to formulate and put into execution a firewarden system to protect the forests from fires, to encourage more conservative systems of lumbering and turpentining, to investigate tax and grazing problems, and in general promote a healthy interest in forest preservation in the State.

The forest fire problem in Florida, as in other Southern States, was found to be a most serious hindrance to the perpetuation of the forests. The practice of burning over the ground annually destroys all possibility of a young growth of pine to take the place of the mature timber when it is out. Moreover, fires injure the standing timber, especially where the trees have been boxed, and destroy the vegetable covering of the soil. It has been demonstrated that repeated fires decrease the value of the forest for grazing purposes.

In order to check the annual fire evil, the report proposes a forest fire law for Florida which shall make it unlawful and punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, for any individual or corporation to start fires on land not their own. The proposed law also makes every owner liable for damages resulting from the spread of fire from his own land to that of another. There are many other important features in the proposed law, such as the appointment of firewardens, the use of spark arresters on locomotives and engines, and posting of fire notices.

The report furthermore recommends Druggists. the establishment of State forests from tax lands and by purchase, as has already been done by many States in the country.

The forests of Florida have lasted longer than in many States, perhaps The need of forest preservation has not been so apparent in the past, but those who understand the present conditions in Florida and in other States should be alive to the necessity of taking some action to cut wisely what forests remain, and provide for regeneration on lands that have already been denuded. The report explains the present situation in detail and points the way for a wiser consideration in the
